DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's after final amendment filed 11/13, 2006 has been received in application serial number 10/687,783. Claims 1-7 and 18 are canceled. Applicant Declaration under 37 C.F.R. §1.13. is correct and does comply.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims and the Golds reference 2004/0162603 have been considered, but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection upon updating the search.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 3738

Claims 8-11, 13 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lentz et al. 5,843, 66. in view of Lam et al. 5,725,572. Lentz et al. discloses the invention as claimed noting figure 1 comprising: a body with an inner layer providing a first flexible covering (12 col. 4, made of e PTFE, lines 54-55) an outer layer with a second flexible covering (22) and a middle wire layer (28 made of nitinol col. 3, lines 60-63) between the inner and outer layers the wire layer providing a compressible self-expanding structure. However the stent of Lentz et al. is a coil wire. Lam et al. teaches a mesh noting figures 1a-5 and further teaches that radiopaque marking are applied to the ends. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize a mesh middle layer because Lentz states in col. 5, lines 56-60 that any conventional radially expandable stent may be employed. Further it is obvious that utilizing the radiopaque markers on the ends will help with proper placement of the device during deployment.

Claims 1, 12 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Bynon et al. 5,667,523. Bynon et al. discloses the invention as claimed comprising: A stent (20) with an outer mesh layer with first and second opposing ends (12, 14); an inner mesh layer (18) defining a shape with opposed first and second ends; wherein the inner mesh layer is fitted within the outer mesh layer and the layers have substantially equal lengths; and a film layer with opposing first and second ends and wherein the film is fitted between the inner and outer mesh layers; and wherein the film layer is made from PTFE (col. 7, line 8); wherein the ends of the film layer extend beyond the ends of the mesh layers (see col. 7, lines 47-49).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 16-17 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

1. I am the inventor of U.S. patent application Serial No. 10/687,783, filed October 17, 2003, and entitled STENT WITH COVERING AND DIFFERENTIAL DILATION.

2. I completed invention of the STENT WITH COVERING AND DIFFERENTIAL DILATION as recited in the claims of Ser. No. 10/687,783 in this country earlier than May 20, 1999. My conception and reduction to practice is demonstrated by confidential descriptions and drawings that I created. A copy of my descriptions and drawings, which I created and dated earlier than May 20, 1999 are attached as Exhibit 1. The dates in the descriptions and drawings, which have been redacted, are all earlier than May 20, 1999.

3. The descriptions and drawings show my invention, as recited in claim 8, of a stent comprising a wire mesh middle layer with an inner layer providing a flexible covering and an outer layer providing a flexible covering. The wire mesh layer is described in page 1
